To the Editor of the Liberator London, Oct. 22.
1864.

Dear Sir, — I deeply regret that Mr. Martin's persistent charge of misrepresentation against me forces me to recur to a dispute for which I have no heart. ~~So far~~

~~His compliment to his own magnificence implied in his supposition that I am jealous of him, I can pass by, also the charge of "rudeness", because I would not sit quietly and allow a serious error concerning men, whose names live in every mind when "American Abolitionists" are spoken of, to pass unchallenged into circulation.~~

So far as in me lies this matter shall rest with the publication of the subjoined correspondence. The gentleman to whom I referred this matter is of preeminent ability, a warm advocate of our cause, and I have reason to believe, a personal friend of Mr. Martin. I have myself no personal acquaintance with him whatever.

Yours truly,

M. D. Conway.

My dear Sir, - I deeply regret that Mr. Martin's persistent change of this representation against me forces me to turn to a dispute for which I have no heart. ~~to~~
~~his confidence in this matter~~
~~in his confidence in this matter~~
~~in his confidence in this matter~~
I can have by ~~the~~ change of "order" because I would not sit quietly and allow a serious
error concerning men, whose names
live in every living man's memory
to be "lost" or "spoken of" as I have changed into circulation.
So far as in me lies this matter shall rest with the publication of the following corrections. The gentleman to whom I referred this matter is of course
ability, a warm advocate of our cause
and I have reason to believe a fair and fair of Mr. Martin. I have no personal acquaintance with him whatever.
